Topps Seal™ now joins the list of other notables in history who made Kentucky home: Johnny Depp, Diane Sawyer, Duncan Hines (chef), George Clooney, John James Audobon (naturalist and writer of birds), and Abraham Lincoln, to name a few.

This 30-year-old visitor center located at the 1-mile marker entering Kentucky from the south off I-65 was recently re-dedicated. The roof restoration and waterproofing was completed using the seamless roof renewal system of Topps Products, Inc., of Overland Park, Kansas.

The facility welcomes millions of visitors to the Bluegrass State, which also is home to the famous Kentucky Derby, the multi-billion dollar thoroughbred industry, and the birthplace of bourbon.

Of greatest interest to the state was stopping leaks and economically preventing more. Facility use continued, so an installation was required which did not interrupt operations. The center receives 50,000-70,000 people a weekend. Energy Star® rated Topps Seal was selected to help expand the savings with ongoing energy savings.
